

Anthony Songbandihit

Nanthalat - Marseilles - M Major 2012

After studies focusing on science, philosophy, and literature, Anthony Songbandhit trained in fashion design, model-making, and computer graphics at ICC (the Institut international de création et de coupe [International Institute of Fashion Design and Hairstyling) in Marseille.

After cutting his teeth with Alexander McQueen at Givenchy, in 2010 he and three friends with complementary skills launched the alternative active menswear brand Nanthalat. In November 2012, Vogue France dedicated a spread to the label, signed off on by executive editor Emmanuelle Alt, followed closely by the Japanese press.
