Lotocoho - Spain - MFP 2014

These young designers, trained at the Madrid School of Architecture, have incorporated an infinite design module into their collection, using geometry as a universal language.

They define their jewellery collections as ecotones, an area of transition between the environment and individuals. Shapes, stories, myths, and legends that change our relationship with landscape, environment, and life.

Lotocoho participated in the Première Classe exhibition in Paris in July 2014 and January 2015.
